the beautiful little town of Dwellingup where my mum and stepfather live. It's in the hills just over an hour south of Perth, nestled in jarrah forest and close to the Murray River – my namesake! A trip further south to the surfing mecca of Margaret River is also essential. It's another naturally spectacular place that makes my life in New York seem like a frenetic dream."

Peter Wells

Peter Wells, co-presenter for Channel 7's Sydney Weekender, has a passion for travel and adventure, recently climbing the sixth highest mountain in the world in the Tibetan Himalayas. Bali is his choice for the perfect place to relax the mind and body: "Hit the surf at first light, followed by a strong Bali coffee with the locals, massage on the beach, back out for a surf, then a couple of cold Bintangs [beers] in the afternoon with friends."

Bree Amer

Channel 10's presenter on Big Brother Friday Night Live, Bree Amer says her ideal place to spend Christmas is the Gold Coast.

"It's where I was born and where all my friends and family are. Christmas Day always seems to be the hottest day of the year and is spent in and out of the water. The Gold Coast has both beaches and the hinterland, which is a bonus, plus Surfers Paradise never shuts down. Even over Christmas, the main street is buzzing.

"The Coast has excellent shops too, so you can do all your Christmas shopping when you arrive. It's also a great family location, with the best theme parks in the country – Movie World, Sea World, Wet 'n' Wild, and of course, Dreamworld, which has the best rides, hands down. There is nowhere I would rather be this Christmas than at home on the Gold Coast."
